Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Let us not seek to satisfy our thirst for freedom by drinking from the cup of bitterness and hatred ... We must forever conduct our struggle on the high plane of dignity and discipline. We must not allow our creative protest to degenerate into physical violence. Again and again, we must rise to the majestic heights of meeting physical force with soul force.

Rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness

Who was Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.?

Dr. Martin Luther King was a Baptist minister, Nobel Peace Prize winner and civil rights hero. One of the most visible advocates of nonviolence and direct action as methods of social change, Martin Luther King, Jr. was born in Atlanta on 15 January 1929. After attending Morehouse College in Atlanta, King went on to study at Crozer Theological Seminary in Pennsylvania and Boston University, where he deepened his understanding of theological scholarship and explored Mahatma Gandhi's nonviolent strategy for social change.

During his short life he did much to make America a more fair, tolerant, and equal nation. He was the main leader of the civil rights movement of the 1950 and 1960s. Because of this movement, civil rights laws that

What did Dr. King do or say that is of importance?

Dr. King believed in the principles of the American Founding. He maintained, "We will reach the goal of freedom in Birmingham and all over the nation, because the goal of America is freedom." Throughout American history, racism has posed a peculiar obstacle to the achievement of that goal. However, Dr. King believed that the Founders had set the nation on the right course. He did not reject the principles of our nation because contradictions existed; instead he hoped that racial groups would put aside their differences and acknowledge the principles that unite all Americans.

Dr. King believed that all labor that uplifts humanity has dignity and importance and should be undertaken with painstaking excellence.

The "I have a dream speech" is inspiring and instructive, hopeful yet realistic. It reminds all races of battles won and challenges still to be met in the name of freedom and equality.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was born on January 15, 1929. In 1944, he went to college at Morehouse University at only fifteen! He graduated with a bachelor's degree in sociology. King was praised by professors for his speech telling abilities. One of the people he admired most was Mohandas Gandhi. He decided that he wanted to preach God's word so he became a minister at his dad's church, Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Georgia. In 1953 he married Coretta Scott, a music lover. Shortly thereafter, Dr. King accepted a job as a pastor in Montgomery, Alabama to be a pastor. Sadly in 1956, Dr. King was put in prison and his house was bombed because of his attempts to stop segregation. But still, King was as strong a Negro leader as Gandhi was to the people of India.

Dr. King traveled all through out the country and spoke thousands of times. He spoke before John F. Kennedy in his famous "I Have a Dream" speech. He knew that being a great leader means that some people won't like you. However, King did not let this get to him.

This website was created to recognize the importance of diversity in our communities, societies, countries, and world today as well as to honor the visionary leadership and good deeds of Martin Luther King Jr. Martin Luther King Junior played a crucial role in creating a country where those of different races and cultures are treated equally. In addition, he believed in what he thought was right, making himself a role model for numerous citizens of the U.S.

Martin Luther King Junior, born to Reverend Martin Luther King Sr. and Alberta Williams King on January 5, 1929, was and still is seen in my eyes as one of the most influential men in history. Martin Luther King Junior was a typical child of his time; he enjoyed activities such as riding his bike, reading, singing, and playing baseball. Leading the Civil Rights Movement and protesting racial segregation and discrimination were two of the major feats completed by Martin Luther King Junior. Although, Martin Luther King Junior is no longer present on our planet today, his work and legacy will continue to live on forever.

Martin Luther King, Jr. (January 15, 1929–April 4, 1968), was one of the main leaders of the American civil rights movement. A Baptist minister by training, King became a civil rights activist early in his career, leading the Montgomery Bus Boycott and helping to found the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. His efforts led to the 1963 March on Washington, where King delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech, raising public consciousness of the civil rights movement and establishing King as one of the greatest orators in American history. In 1964, King became the youngest person to receive the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to end segregation and racial discrimination through civil disobedience and other non-violent means.

MARTIN LUTHER KING JR: A GLOBAL THINKER

Introduction

Introduction

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was born January 15th, 1929 in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. He worked tirelessly in the Civil Rights and Peace Movements, until he was assassinated in 1968. He was a religious leader, a father, and a friend.

When one thinks of Dr. King, what comes to mind? Most likely it is his exceptional accomplishments for the African American race. But Dr. King did so much more that is often overlooked! He was a global thinker, a man who thought of things outside his immediate life. He examined ideas from other viewpoints. He traveled different places, and lived outside his own life and his own world. Today, it's so easy to get caught up in ourselves, focusing on school and work and day-to-day things. Dr. King didn't do this. He was able to see the big picture, and work toward achieving those goals. And he didn't put anything before achieving these goals. Dr. King said at one point, "Like anybody, I would like to live a long life. Longevity has its place. But I'm not concerned about that now. I just want
